SECTOR FOCUS

AI-Native Services	Enterprise SaaS	Vertical SaaS
• Back companies replacing traditional professional services with AI — the "Death of Deloitte" thesis on AI-native service models • Ultra-concentrated portfolio: only 5–7 new investments per year, ensuring deep conviction and high-touch founder support throughout the company lifecycle • Prioritize vertical SaaS and industry cloud — purpose-built software for specific sectors with deep domain expertise and defensible data moats • Extend into physical world AI — autonomous systems bringing intelligent automation beyond software into real-world environments (robotics, drones, sensors)

JHTV PORTFOLIO MATCHES

Oncospace Todd McNutt & Praveen Sinha Cloud-native AI platform predicting and optimizing radiation oncology treatment plans — FDA cleared, ISO 27001, Series A. Vertical SaaS with real-world clinical data moats; fits Emergence's industry-cloud thesis.	ForagerOne Yash Jain, Michael Ashmead & Ansh Bhammar B2B SaaS serving 200+ research institutions with collaboration and tech transfer acceleration tools; Scoutt product identifies commercializable IP across faculty research — enterprise software with strong network effects.
CurveAssure Evan Haas AI video-based MSK assessment platform with $500K+ ARR and no hardware required. Vertical AI replacing labor-intensive clinical workflows — fits Emergence's thesis of purpose-built software automating professional services.	Semaphor Tito Porras, Mathias Unberath & Axel Krieger AI autonomy framework and SDK enabling surgical robotics to operate independently — an early physical-world AI play aligned with Emergence's investments in Bedrock Robotics and DroneDeploy.
